BENEFIT OF LAUGHTER.—Probably there is not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood-vessels of the bedy that does not feel some wavelet from the convulsions of hearty laughter. The blood moves more lively—probably its ehemical, electric, or vital condition is distinctly modified—it convers a different impression to all the organs of the body as it visits them on that particular mystic journey when we are laughing, from what it does at other times. And so, we doubt not, a good laugh may lengthen our lives, convening a distinct stimulus to the vital forces. And the time may come when physicians, attending more closely than they are apt to do at present to the innumerable subtle influences which, the soul exerts upon its at present to the innumerable subtle influences which, the soul exerts upon its tenement of clay, shall prescribe to a torpid patient, so many peals of laughter, to be undergone at such and such a time, just as they now do that far more objectionable prescription, a will or an electric or galvanic shock, and shall study the best and most effective method of producing the required effect in each patient. [Herald of Health.]

MOUNT SHASTA, - The Yreka Union MOUNT SHARTA. — The Yreka Union speaks of this great mountain feature as follows: All the travelers who visit this country for the first time go into raptures over Mout Sharta. It is not a curiosity, but something greater. It is one of the grand sights of the world; in some respect, perhaps, the grandest. It is true there are higher mountains, but we know of no other so robed in grandeur. Other mountains are higher because placed on of no other so robed in grandeur. Other mountains are higher because placed on higher pedestal. Mount Shasta, like a single dome, rises solitary and alone from the common plane of the earth. You stand in the plains of Shasta and your eye sees it from summit to base at a single glance. You see before you, rising out of the plain in which you stand, a dome which reaches 12,000 feet heavenward above you. We are only surprised that of the many thousand of sight-seers who visit California amunally, re few come to look on this, the grandest sight which California offers. which California offers.
